> PRE-REGISTRATION REQUIRED

> A conference entitled "Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders > Research to Practice" will be held on September 11, 2004 at the > Ida and William Friday Center for Continuing Education. Aimed at > physicians, nurses, judges, teachers, social service workers, > child advocates, addiction counselors and others who work with > people affected in-utero by alcohol, the program will bring > national and local experts to Chapel Hill for a one-day > conference. Families of affected individuals are encouraged to > attend.

> The morning session will include presentations describing the > disorders caused by exposure of a fetus to alcohol, the extent of > the problem in the United States and in North Carolina, the > impact of FASD on the legal system, and a personal perspective by > a mother turned FASD activist. During the afternoon, attendees > can choose to attend two of the following seminars: 1) the basic > science of FASD; 2) FASD issues faced by health care > professionals; 3) legal and child protection issues of FASD; and > 4) the impact of FASD on the education system. A final > presentation will cover the North Carolina perspective on the > problem.
